A EXPLANATION

1 This principle states that, when financial statements are prepared, the assumption is that the business will continue to trade for the foreseeable future.
3.2 An accountant is always careful to bring all possible losses into account even if they have not yet happened, but will not account for profits until they are realised (made).
3.3 When deciding whether to classify something as an asset the financial impact of the entry must be considered, e.g. an external hard drive costing R350 may last for more than a year, but it would not be classified as a noncurrent asset.

It is important that the personal transactions of the partners are not treated as business transactions.
3.5 The accounting must be done in the same way every year, e.g. the same rate of depreciation must be used, so that valid comparisons can be made.
3.6 When calculating the net profit the accountant must ensure that the income and expenses cover the same financial period.
3.7 All assets will be recorded at the actual cost on the original date of purchase - not what they would cost now.

B CONCEPT ANSWER

A consistency

B separate entity

C going concern

D historical cost

E matching

F materiality

G prudence

UNIT 2: INTERNAL CONTROL AND INTERNAL AUDIT

5.1 The business needs an electricity connection in its new premises and offers the electricity department official an present of R5 000 to do the job quickly.
5.2 Business $A$ and Business $B$, both trade in the same product. They decide it would be best for both businesses if they sold this product at the same price.
5.3 The internal auditor hears the partners discussing the purchase of a certain property for the business. He buys it for himself without telling the partners.
5.4 Management gives an employee a first letter of warning after the employee is found to be rude to customers.
5.5 A person who cannot pay his debts (and has just won the lotto) asks the court to declare him bankrupt so that he does not have to pay his debts.
5.6 The managers are given a salary increase of $15 \%$ and the wage earners are given an increase of $4 \%$.
5.7 An employee asks her friend to 'clock in' for her as she has an appointment with her child's teacher and will be late for work.
5.8 The accountant has heard that one of the debtors has been retrenched and has not been able to find work. He writes off her account as bad at the end of the financial period.
5.9 The business repairs stock which was returned by a customer as it is broken and sells it as brand new.
5.10 A garden service employs two people. Over weekends one of the gardeners hires out his services and uses the business' tools, fertiliser, etc. You have been told by one of your clients that this gardener told him not to use your services to maintain his garden - he will do it over weekends for less.

STATEMENT

43.1 The business entered into a big contract to replace all the computer equipment throughout the store. This had all been delivered, installed and invoiced by the end of the 2017 financial year. However it is not in full use yet. The partners instruct you not to show this transaction in 2017 as the equipment will only be fully used in 2018.
43.2 One of the older delivery vans has become unreliable and instead of depreciating it by the usual $20 \%$ p.a. on book value, the partners have told the accountant to write it down to R1.
43.3 On checking the debtors accounts at the year end, it is noticed that one debtor, who owes the business a lot of money, has not paid a cent. The partners institute legal action against this debtor and ask the court to declare him insolvent
43.4 The partners each deposit R50 000 at 4 p.m. on the last day of the financial period and ask the bookkeeper to receipt it as Capital, but not to bank it until they tell her to.
43.5 The business has given its two employees who work in the accounting department a flash drive each with the instruction to back up their work each evening and take the flash drive home with them. These flash drives cost R250 each and the partners tell you to enter it as stationery.
43.6 The financial statements are showing very poor results this year. The partners tell the bookkeeper not to depreciate the assets as it is really not necessary - they are all in good condition.
43.7 The business has entered into a big contract for the supply of goods in the next financial year. The partners ask you, the accountant, to show it as this year's income as the contract was entered into in this financial period.
